TREFF PUTS NEED FOR CIVIC SPIRIT AMONG KINGSTONIANS IN COGENT WAY

In Pointing Out Support of Chamber of Commerce as Best Method of Advancing City's Interests, He Cites Numerous Instances Where Energy of Citizens Has Overcome Handicaps.

Edward F. Treff, who spoke at the dinner of the workers in the membership drive of the Chamber of Commerce at the Eagle Hotel Monday evening, came to Kingston with a recommendation by the merchants' associations from all over the country as one of the best speakers they ever heard and after listening to his talk the Kingston Chamber of Commerce is willing to add its recommendation to the long list. Mr. Treff gave one of the most inspiring talks ever listened to by a body of local business men and at the conclusion those present seemed convinced that there was something worth while working for in Kingston and by Mr. Treff's talk learned some of the ways in which this work could be carried on in Kingston.

The speaker, a former field secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who has visited practically every town in the United States with a population of 5,000 or over, pointed out from experience what was necessary to make a town thrive and become a place to attract men and energy build a town and not industries and locations. This was very clearly demonstrated by the speaker who pointed out several cities which had been very unfortunately located and very badly handicapped as to natural resources, railroads and harbors but which by the energy of their men had overcome these handicaps and had built up great business centers. The city of New York, the greatest port of all times, was once badly outstripped in outgoing and incoming tonnage by other smaller cities on the coast but by hard work on the part of energetic citizens has overcome this handicap and has now outdone its former leaders in commerce.

"Give me the character and ideals of your men and women in Kingston and I'll tell you the population of Kingston 20 years hence and the total of your bank clearings and I won't miss the latter by more than 10 per cent," said Mr. Treff. The interest in the speaker's talk was the thing that makes a town according to the conclusion of Mr. Treff after a most exhaustive study of the problem. He cited Kansas City, Chicago and other towns where railroads had been compelled to enter. Chicago is considerably out of the straight line and short route for a transcontinental railroad, still the big roads swing up and touch Chicago. Kansas City, once wiped out of the railroad map, was forced back through the efforts of its citizens. New Orleans with miles of dockage was handicapped by a peculiar clause in the title of the river frontage but has become one of the big business centers for commerce through the work of its citizens. This peculiar clause in the title prevents the river dockage from being used so long as there is a single complaint from a single citizen. The people of the city did not lay down; they constructed at great cost a canal along which shipping may have ample dockage for years to come and surmounted their difficulty which was preventing them from becoming one of the greatest ports of the south. Other instances were cited where cities had pulled themselves up above the surrounding country by the efforts of their citizens. So the speaker has come to the conclusion, he said, that the same principles are applicable in every place.

The growth of a community is based upon the character of the citizen and not upon the resources. The same principles upon which the home is built are the same principles upon which a community must be built. If men would do for their city what they do for their home and family it would build up any community. This is the thing which the speaker urged everyone to do, work for their city with the same energy as though they were working for their family.

Schools play a most important part in any community and the school teacher makes the school. As an example Mr. Treff took his own family. He stated that he could not go to school and come out again, it was not by his own effort but it was in the public schools a teacher gives a wrong impression to his children the children would grow up with this wrong impression and it would be practically impossible to change the youth, and he cautioned Kingston to guard well the public schools where the youth of tomorrow is being moulded today to take up the duties which will be thrust upon him tomorrow.

Parks and schools play a most important part in any city and present one of the big problems of the present time. The surrounding country and the farmer should also be considered by every city for the farmer is a most important factor in the upbuilding of every city.

In order that the United States maintain the lead she has gained Mr. Treff urged everyone to get busy and build for the betterment of the city and country for on the

27 NEW NAMES ON C. OF C. ROSTER

Twenty-seven new memberships were reported at the first meeting of the workers since the campaign to expand the chamber's membership began, held at the Y. M. C. A. at noon. This was regarded as very satisfactory inasmuch as the drive was just getting under way and the luncheon at which the team captains made their reports was pervaded with an atmosphere of confidence that a large addition will be made to the chamber's membership. Some of the committees have not made reports as yet and it is assumed they have secured enough new members to swell today's total considerably. The campaign will continue today, tomorrow and Thursday.

ASK CLARIFICATION OF VOLSTEAD LAW

Administration Will Offer Amendments to Make Its Enforcement Less Offensive to Foreign Nations.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, June 12.—Although the government will proceed with the rigid enforcement of the supreme court's dry seas ruling because it has no other choice in the matter, President Harding and other officials do not believe that the international complications growing out of such enforcement were foreseen by congress in enacting the Volstead law. It was said, officially, at the White House today after the cabinet meeting.

So long as the law remains as it is, however, the treasury department, and the department of justice will continue to enforce it, according to the White House spokesman, but it was indicated that the administration would go before congress in December with definite recommendations for clarifying amendments. These amendments would be designed to clearly interpret the intent of congress and to eliminate much of the embarrassment now confronting enforcement.

NO PROGRESS ON REPARATIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, June 12.—White Great Britain was still exchanging views with the other Allies today on the reparations question there appeared every prospect of a deadlock.

Premier Poincaré of France, has refused to budge an inch from his uncompromising position. The British cabinet, which regards the German note of last week as a basis of discussion, is unwilling to change its attitude.

The situation is admittedly delicate with the prospects for an inter-allied conference diminishing.

BRITAIN TO GO SLOW ON "DRY SHIP" QUESTION

London, June 12.—Despite Premier Baldwin's intimation in the House of Commons and public pressure, it was learned this afternoon that the government will adopt a policy of "watchful waiting" on the "dry ship" question. ## New York Crops Have Had Poor Start; Fair Fruit Supply Indicated

May Temperature 2.4 Degrees Below Normal—Fifth Successive Cold Month and Also Dry—Usual Acreage Despite Shortage of Labor—Fruit Prospects Uniformly Good.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, N. Y., June 12.—On June 1 all crops except fruits were in poorer condition than usual in this state, according to the official estimates prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the State Department of Farms and Markets.

During May the average temperature in this state, according to the preliminary estimates of the weather bureau, was 2.4 degrees below normal, this being the coldest May since 1917, and the fifth month in succession with a temperature below the usual average. As a result all crops have made slow growth. The month was also dry, the average rainfall being about 1.1 inches below normal or 30 per cent less than is usually received during May. As February, March and April were also a little drier than usual, crops were suffering for moisture before the end of the month. On June 1, prospects for winter wheat, spring wheat, oats, barley, rye, clover and alfalfa all ranged from two to four per cent below the usual June 1 average. All hay crops taken together average 5 per cent below the condition of pastures was reported as only 82, which is ten per cent below the usual average and the lowest June 1 condition reported since the dry hot spring of 1903.

These estimates are based on reports which farmers mailed on June 1. Since that time there has been some improvement in crop prospects, for all parts of the state have had a good rain. It is therefore too early for any feeling of discouragement.

CANFIELD PLEADS WITH HYLAN

Bad Booze Results in Crime, He Says—Million Bootleggers in U. S.—Concludes With Threat of Swarm of Dry Agents.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, June 12.—Crime in New York may be traced directly to the character of liquor being sold here, according to Palmer Canfield, prohibition director of New York state, in letter addressed to Mayor John F. Hylan today.

Canfield pleads with Mayor Hylan to turn the full power of New York's police force into stopping the sale of "the noxious, unwholesome and semi-poisonous crime-generating liquor."

Canfield's letter is an answer to one sent by Mayor Hylan to the prohibition chief placing the blame for the flood of liquor in New York at the door of national enforcement officials who fail to stop the supply at its source.

In his reply Canfield says there are one million bootleggers in the United States.

"It seems as if bootleggers grow up over night," Canfield says. Canfield concluded his letter with a threat that unless New York police aid in stamping out bootlegging here he will cover the city with thousands of prohibition agents.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BABY BISON

"Oh," said Mother Bison, "the people are all coming to see my child and so they should for she is a beautiful little bison."

"She is famous, too, for she is the granddaughter of Black Diamond, the well-known American bison or buffalo whose head was reproduced upon the five-cent piece or nickel which is so often used."

"My mate was the son of Black Diamond, and he is considered a splendid animal. In fact my mate is supposed to be one of the finest members of the American Bison family to be seen in any zoo."

"My mate is named Toby and he often is a ferocious creature. Sometimes he has broken down the iron bars of his yard, but I, too, can be wild if I want to be. I will tell you now that I am intensely jealous of my daughter and if anyone should try to harm her I would be wild with rage."

"My name is Mary. Yes, my name is Mary Bison."

"The Bison family has an interesting family history. We used to be famous in the West and when the first railroads were built in those parts they made use of members of our family for meat."

"In the old days Indians had said there was great value in buffalo skins and meat and then the white people came along and they found our family was a tremendous help to them, for they were building far away from where there were provisions and they lived upon us."

"Of course that was necessary. Railroads had to be built and the people who built them had to live and yet it was almost impossible to get food in new parts had it not been for us."

"And they did what was right. Only it was never right when later on people shot at members of our family for what they called 'sport'. But good people came to our rescue. They said there would be no more Bison family if this continued."

"We are so well looked after and protected in zoos. There are four of us here and in another zoo in this city there are forty. We are the only American representative, it is said, of the Oxen family. The men in our family are very strong and they can fight wolves or bears."

"When a buffalo herd gets started on the 'go' there is nothing that can stop them. We have a very keen sense of smell and we can scent things from afar. Then, too, we are strong. We have never become pets, and though we may live for forty years or more we will not be pets."

"I'm shedding at present because I always like to shed at this time of the year."

"My little darling seems so small beside her mother. Many have come to the zoo and have taken our pictures. I have always stood in the background for I knew my baby was the one they wanted to photograph."

"A Thing of Loveliness."

"And yet I have stayed fairly near for I want to be sure that no harm comes to my baby. She has such a sweet expression on her little bison baby face!"

"And to think she is the granddaughter of the famous bison whose head is shown on the nickel which every one uses! Oh, yes, she has a family history of which she can very well boast, but she will not boast of it for she says she has already done that for her."

"They've been taking our pictures of animals lately from other zoos—a secretary bird with quills behind his ears, a young zebra, a Kaffir crane and a pair of African hornbills have all had their photographs in the paper, it seems. But our pictures have been in almost every paper in the city and people have come to see us."

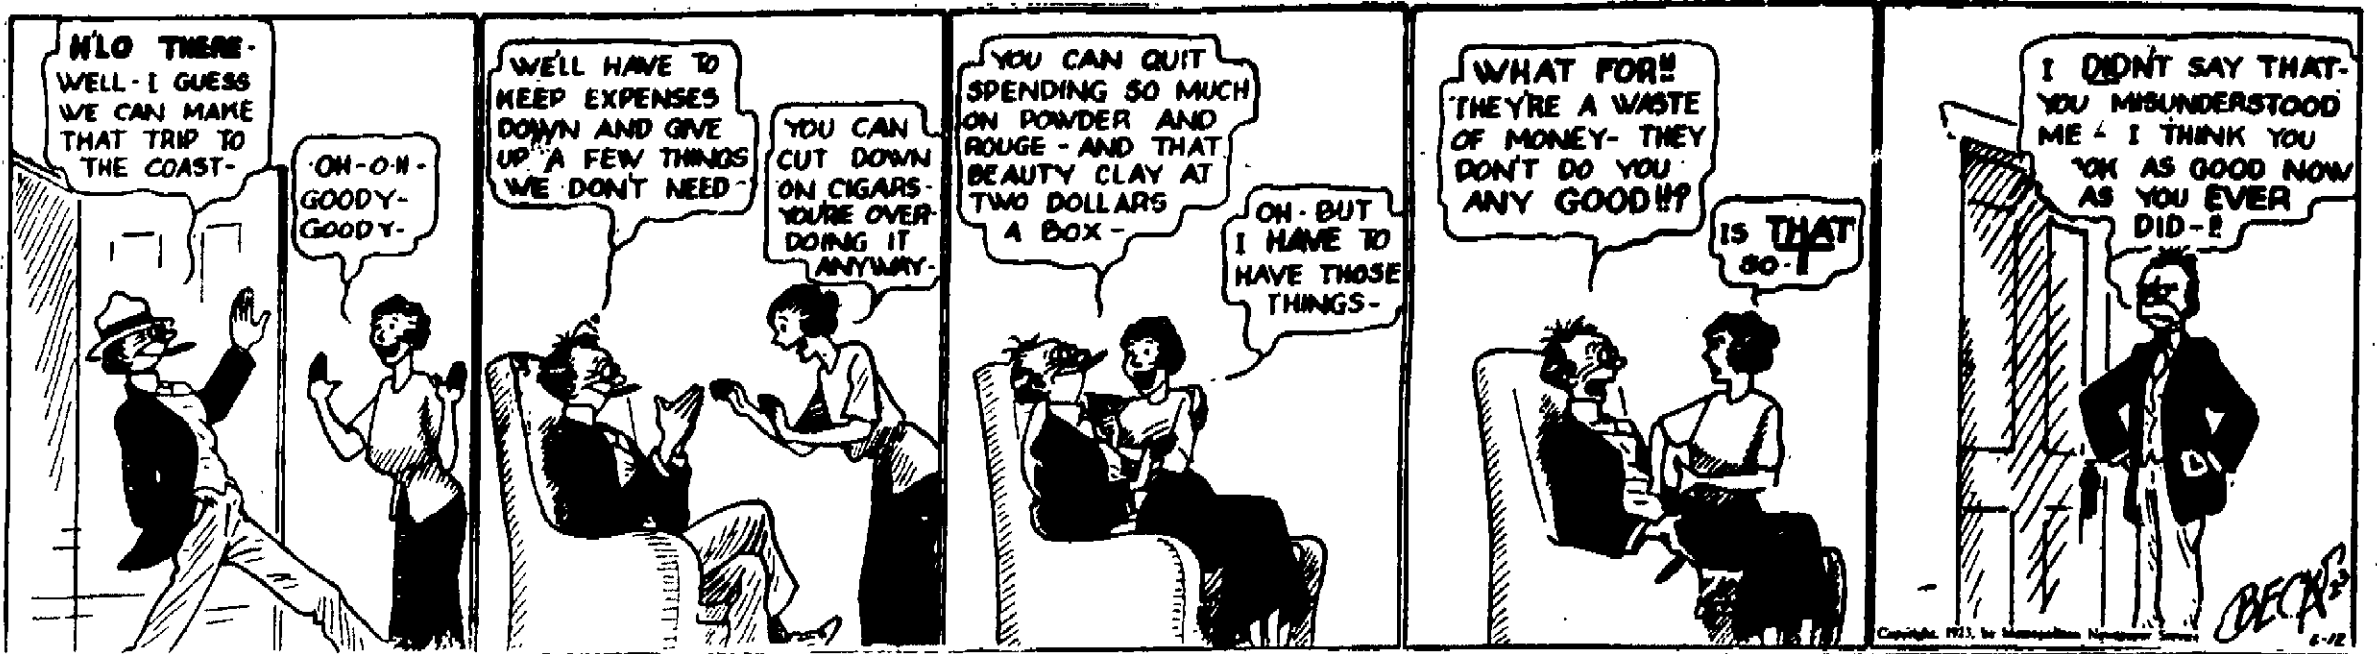

"A Kaffir crane is a curious-looking creature, so are African hornbills, so is a secretary bird and so is a zebra, but a baby bison is a thing of loveliness! I think so at any rate, and I should know. I'm the baby's mother. And what will her name be? I haven't decided that as yet, but for the present I'm calling her Baby Bison. That's such a cunning way of speaking of a cunning little darling!"

Got Even by Proxy.
"Mamma," said four-year-old Howard, "that mean little Smith girl called me a monkey today."

"Then what happened?" asked his mother.
"Well," replied Howard, "I gave another little girl half of my candy to scratch her."

The KITCHEN CABINET

I've whittled away dyspeptic hours with crabs in marble halls And in the lowly cottage I've experienced roach balls; But I've never found a viand that could so allay all grief And soothe the cockles of the heart Like rare roast beef.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

Add a slice of onion to the tomato when first put on to stew, then remove it before ready to serve.

A layer of fine sawdust placed on the floor before laying linoleum will add to its life and make the surface much softer to stand upon. This is especially a wise treatment for a kitchen floor, where the feet get very tired from much standing and walking.

When washing glassware place it in the water edgewise, as, set down on the bottom, it often cracks from sudden expansion.

Darn the worn spots of the stair carpet with wool of the same color, being careful to match the color. The spots will scarcely show.

Some dress goods are hard to press. For such gowns hang them over the bathtub or in the bathroom, turn on the hot water and shut the door and windows tightly and let them hang for two hours, then open the room and let the garments dry in fresh air. Hanging a gown over a hot-air register for an hour or more will often freshen it wonderfully, if badly wrinkled.

Here is a good home-made breakfast food which is worth while trying on the family. Take three-fourths of a cupful of flour, three-fourths of a cupful of Graham flour, mix well, add half a teaspoonful of salt, and water, and cook to the consistency of mush. Serve hot with a few dates and cream and sugar.

A little tartaric acid, the crystals dissolved in a little water, will remove any fruit stains quickly. Wash the hands well after using.

A roast of meat should always be served on a platter large enough to carry it easily, and never serve it with gravy. If you care for your linen, burn cinnamon or a few cloves on the top of the stove to purify the air after cooking cabbage or onions.

A lump of sugar added to the rinsing water will stiffen fine organdies and muslins.

NATURAL AND OTHERWISE

By T. T. Maxey

BOSTON COMMON

Boston was founded in 1620 and Boston Common, distinctive and unique among municipal parks or open-air gathering places has been in existence from the very beginning of the community—having been set aside in 1634 as a "place for a training field as well as for the feeding of cattle."

The Common occupies approximately fifty acres. In the early days the Charles river bordered on one side. Atop its highest point stands the Army and Navy monument "to the men of Boston who died for their country on land and sea in the war which kept the Union whole, destroyed slavery and maintained the Constitution," occupying the site upon which the British erected a redoubt during the siege of the city in Revolutionary war times. The present pool is of artificial origin. A gigantic elm tree that was old when the Common was laid out, from the limbs of which executions are said to have taken place in early times, was a feature of the landscape until blown down by a storm in 1876.

To remain a fixed institution in progressive America for practically three centuries is an accomplishment extraordinary, yet here is a park—the Common, which has been a common in reality as well as in name since 1634. Its walks and lawns have been enjoyed by rich and poor, old and young, not only by Bostonians, but by citizens of every state in this Union as well as by citizens of practically every country on the face of the earth.

Despite the growth of the town and the pressure to commercialize large open spaces adjacent to the business part of the town, no street car lines have been permitted to encroach on the Common, neither has its size been reduced—the law of 1640 which declares that "there shall be no land granted either for house, plot or garden out of the ground of common field," having been strictly complied with.

Pleasingly rolling—hill and slope—probably no other open space in America is in more general use, due unquestionably to the large population which resides within reasonable walking distance plus the fact that it is "right here in the center of things and does not need going to."

Geraniums Adorn Large Summer Hat of Straw

Bright geranium blossoms of silk form the decoration so effectively used on this huge summer hat. It is one of the latest Paris fashions.

Fashion Notes That Will Interest Women

Some of the tailored suits are delightfully practical and cut on the simplest of lines. Brown gabardine composes one of these tailors, which has a plain, straight skirt and a short jacket fastening on the left hip with a fancy medallion of brown silk braid. The jacket fastens on the left shoulder and the front has a simple braid medallion.

Among the summer frocks there is one model likely to become extremely popular. It looks well on both the slim and the plump, the young and old. This model has an accordion-plaited skirt and it is likely to be supplemented with a little cape, also accordion-plaited.

That pleasant combination of colors, dark blue and biscuit, is seen in a surprisingly large number of street frocks. These frocks are likely to be of gabardine or heavy silk marocain with a piping of biscuit satin or with panels faced in biscuit.

The slender silhouette is achieved in a number of ways this season, but no way is more popular than the long side panels which cut the breadth about the hips and give a graceful hemline.

A gown of white brocaded velvet has a band of sable about the hem and outlining the very short sleeves. It has a full, bouffant skirt and a close-fitting bodice.

A most attractive fan of black lace is mounted over green chiffon. The pattern is outlined with small black sequins.

Care of Finger Nails

Fine Art, Says Actress

"Care of the fingernails is such a fine art—much finer than it is usually ranked—that I have devoted time and attention to learning about it," observes a prominent "movie" star. "A girl, really, should show the same care in the treatment of her nails that she does her complexion."

"First, the cuticle should never be jabbed at, because the nails will immediately resent it and the 'moons' become imperfect. Care should be taken in polishing that a too high luster does not detract from the beauty of the finished operation."

"Soak the nails for a few minutes in warm, soapy water. Wipe gently, pushing back the cuticle, then dip in warm olive oil—this is invaluable if the fingernails are at all brittle—wipe dry and polish with nail powder, or if a brilliant polish is not desired, rub each hand briskly on the palm of the other."

"Neglected nails really reveal a procrastinating disposition which most girls would resent being accused of possessing. Just a few minutes a day spent in caring for the hands—and beauty is started on its way."

Use Ribbons and Cords

to Hang the Pictures

The day of the hideous wire angles for picture and mirrors is past. Ribbons and gay colored cords now do utilitarian service even as they decorate. Most attractive ribbon hangings are designed so that a ribbon cascade, conventionalized flowers or even bows end the ribbon where it catches to the molding or hides the nails from which the mirror is hung. Sometimes a streamer of flowers falls from the cascade.

Some ribbons are strong enough to hold the object to be hung. Where the object is very heavy, put a wire or heavy cord back of the ribbon.

Small objects need but one hanger. Larger and heavier ones need two.

Should Choose Colors

That Will Suit Eyes

For those who wear blouses and shirtwaists the most important point to remember is that the cut of the neckline makes or mars the contour of the face—just the right cut forms a setting for the head. Ribbon ties, bows, medallions, jabots of different colors add greatly to the fresh look of a waist; also add variety and make one blouse seem many. Ribbons worn at the neck line should be carefully chosen as to color. Color worn near the face affects the shade of the eyes. The right colors brighten, intensify, and beautify the eyes; wrong colors dull, fade or spoil the coloring or expression of the eye.

New Sport Style.

One sport suit seen recently indicates the trend of sport styles. It has an accordion-plaited crepe de chine skirt in white with green stripes. There is a green silk sweater without a blouse beneath, a green felt hat and green sandals and stockings.

NEED FOR UNIFORMITY IN BUSINESS LAWS

How Collection of Just Debts May Be Prevented by Differing State Statutes.

An effort to bring about better coordination and greater uniformity among state laws dealing with business and banking is being made by the American Bankers Association.

It is pointed out that, although the country is a unit commercially, and citizens of any one state may do business that reaches all over the country, most laws governing business transactions are made by the different states, with application limited to their own local jurisdictions and often in conflict with laws in other states. It is held that state laws should be uniform so that the same transaction will not be subject to different sets of rules according as state laws differ.

To illustrate the disadvantages of conflicting laws, the following illustration is given: Mr. Jones lives in New York where the statute of limitations outlaws a note six years. He falls into the error of assuming that the same rule prevails everywhere. He visits Maryland and loans $1,000 to his friend, Mr. Smith, taking a promissory note. As the note carries interest Mr. Jones is in no hurry for his money and he believes Smith to be financially responsible. Finally at the end of four years Jones concludes he has loaned Smith the money long enough and seeks to collect the note from him. But Smith can deny liability and point to the statute of Maryland which Jones is surprised to learn outlaws a note after three years.

Changes Recommended
The particular subjects of legislation recommended by the association during 1923 include uniform acts on negotiable instruments, bills of lading, warehouse receipts, stock transfer, and fiduciaries.

Under the head of laws for better protection of banks in particular, transactions are proposed measures dealing with limiting liability on certified checks; instruments based on gambling or usurious consideration; time limit on stop payment; payment of state checks; adverse claim to bank deposit; payment of forged or raised checks; deposits in two names; deposits in trust; competency of bank and corporation notaries; non-payment of check through error; Saturday afternoon bank transactions, and forwarding check direct to payor.

Under the Federal Reserve and foreign banking are recommended laws on membership of state institutions in Federal Reserve System, and foreign banking. Penal laws proposed deal with false statements for credit; alander and libel of bank; checks or drafts without funds, and burglary with explosives.

THE BEST THE FARMS PRODUCE

By WALTER W. HEAD

First Vice-President, American Bankers Association

Walter W. Head

Every banker and business man in the country is interested in the farm from another viewpoint than merely a place to raise farm products and live stock. Above all the farm is one of the places where we can best bring up our boys and girls. Thousands of men and boys each year are flocking to the city. Clerks in the city are barely eking out an existence and they cannot expect to receive much more in the way of compensation. But back on the farms are men working for a reasonable return, and in addition they have their houses, the wonderful sunshine above in the daytime, the wonderful fresh air and all the things that the soil produces. The boy who is raised on the farm will have an entirely different aspect of life and approach the various problems with which he has to deal in later years in a different way from the boy who is raised in the city.

Every single banker should feel that the problems his farmer customers have to contend with are not only the farmer's problems but his problems as well. He should feel not only that the farmer must be prosperous so that he can deposit more in his bank, giving the banker more to loan, but that there is something which cannot be measured in dollars, and cents it is the thought of rendering such service to their customers—regardless of whether they are farmers, or men working in the shops, or big business men of the cities—that will bring not only prosperity but contentment as well. The banker should take as his motto: "Who serves best profits most."

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Mulstified coconut oil shampoo which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulstified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply wet the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rises out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly, and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulstified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will serve every member of the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulstified."

COMMENCEMENT AT ST. STEPHEN'S

President Bell Denounces Substitution of Technical Education For Cultural in American Colleges As Peril to Civilization.

At the sixty-third commencement exercises at St. Stephen's College, Annandale, today honorary degrees were conferred as follows:

Edward F. Albee, theatre magnate, Master of Arts; the Rev. John A. Staunton, missionary and mining engineer, Doctor of Divinity; the Rev. Wallace J. Gardner, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, Doctor of Divinity.

The Bachelor's degree was conferred upon six men.

The president of the college, the Rev. Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, who made the address of the day, delivered a strong criticism of the "premature specialization among college students," which he said "is a common characteristic of that American educational decay which must alarm most thinking people."

Many of our educational institutions of reputation and honorable history, he continued, "have been transforming themselves of late years until they are little more than glorified trade schools. Their bachelor's degrees mean next to nothing of real culture. Their possibility of contributing anything much to the restoration of a civilization which is perishing is mighty small indeed."

It is among the eminent Divines of one sort or another amidst their alumni there are occasional persons who have any vision of human life except in terms of cash and pleasure. It will not be the fault of these eminently degenerate institutions."

The place for technical study, said Dr. Bell, in the case of inferior intelligence is the trade school; in the case of clever men, the post graduate school, never the college.

"At the present time the college has all it can do to avoid being squeezed out itself and having with it squeezed out the bases of true culture, between the upper millstone of cupidity and the lower millstone of stupidity. As for St. Stephen's, it understands the tendency of the times in American higher education and it would die rather than conform to them."

MAYFIELD TIGERS HERE TOMORROW

Wednesday afternoon at 6:15 the Mayfield Tigers will make their first appearance at the Fair Grounds. Although this club has never played here under the name given a number of the players will be familiar to local fans as they were with the Green Island K. of C. last season. This club was defeated by the D. & H. Generals this year in a close game by the score of 6-4. They defeated the Brotherhood of Troy by an 8-2 score. They have also played some of the other semi-pro clubs up state and are regarded as a strong club. Ross will very likely receive the pitching assignment for the locals.

Perry, the high school coach, will probably accompany the local club during the next twelve days at least. He is a former Hamilton college pitcher and it is understood that he is to receive a tryout later in the season with the Utica K. of C. Utica is his home town. The Colonials will play in Red Hook on Thursday and Rossback will oppose them on the mound.

Sometimes Difficult to*Get Start of Alfalfa

On land which is very rich in humus it is sometimes difficult to get alfalfa started because of the looseness of the soil. On such soil the alfalfa seed which is deep enough in the ground to have moisture enough to grow, may be so deep that it does not grow; and if the seed is shallow enough to grow it may not be deep enough to have moisture long enough. Hence on such ground the seed should be covered shallow and the surface soil be well compacted by rolling after the seeding is done.

Main Requirements of Good Alfalfa Seed Bed

The main requirements of a good seed bed for alfalfa, red and sweet clover, and other small seeded crops are that it be moist, finely pulverized, compact, with a loose surface. Aside from moisture which depends on the weather, perhaps the most important point, especially if the seed bed has been plowed, is to get it firmly packed.

Assassin Bug

The assassin bug Reduvius personatus which is known as the masked bed-bug hunter, does not by any means confine its food to that objectionable insect known as the bed-bug but feeds freely upon flies and other kinds of insects. It is frequently found in rooms which are little used and the mask of dust is worn only while the insect is young, at which time its body is covered with a sticky substance to which particles of dust adhere. This is the insect which was known some years ago as the "kissing-bug." When handled carelessly, it is capable of inflicting a painful bite. It is said that the bite is almost equal to that of the bite of poisonous snakes and the swelling and irritation which result from it will sometimes last for a week. These insects, of course, are able to fly and in this way they frequently enter houses in search of food.—A. G.

Pitching Mainstays Still Going Nicely

Those pitching mainstays, Walter Johnson of Washington and G. C. Alexander of the Chicago Nationals, show no sign of letting up in their effectiveness, or rather, they are off to a much better start than has been the case in some recent years. Though both are well entitled to be considered veterans, Johnson's tenure of service exceeds that of the Cub boxman by several years.

LOAD OF BIRD SHOT IS HELP TO BARBER

Injury to Brooklyn Outfielder's Forehead Greatly Improves Batting Eye.

Although it sounds paradoxical, a load of bird shot pumped into the body of Turner Barber, the outfielder obtained by Brooklyn from Chicago in a trade, made the former a much better batsman.

From the character of the injury sustained one would think that Barber's playing would be impaired, but he insists that it worked just the opposite and points to the records to bear out the assertion. He batted .314 in 1921 and .309 last season.

The shooting, purely accidental, occurred in the woodland in the vicinity of the player's home at Milan, Tenn., two years ago. Barber was picking his way through some sage brushwood to get within aiming distance of a pheasant. Just as he popped his head up to discharge his musket, a fellow hunter, taking him for a deer, fired his shotgun, and Barber felt back bleeding profusely from four ugly wounds.

One piece of shot lodged in the forehead, between the eyes, narrowly missing the optic nerve which would have caused total blindness. The other three lodged in the left side of the nose, the left hand near the thumb and in the calf of the right leg.

Barber dug the piece of shot out of his leg with a penknife and his family physician removed the piece from his hand. It was found unnecessary to extract the metal from the forehead and nose and Barber is still carrying them around with him. He says he feared at first that the forehead wound would bother his vision, but instead it seemed to steady the nerves and his eyesight has improved. He claims that he gets a better view of the ball and has hit harder than before the accident. The player has suffered no ill effects since the shooting.

ROAD BUILDING*Wider Highways Help Solve Traffic Problem

A dispatch from London states that country roads and city streets to be laid out hereafter in Great Britain will have a right of way 120 feet wide in most instances and 100 feet wide as a minimum, if present plans of the government are carried out. The same dispatch states that because motor traffic has made it obvious that the old narrow country roads are not in these days safe, and because unemployment in many lines makes this time seem a favorable one for the construction and improvement of highways, public enthusiasm has greeted the official plan for the widening of existing roads and the establishment of the 120 foot width as the official standard for the future.

England's roads approached 100 per cent perfect long before any great accomplishment in highway construction had been recorded in this country. Long before the war the highways of England had become rivals of the railways through the use of motor trucks and steam traction engines, often hauling several trailers, each with a capacity of tons. The roads bore this traffic well and their maintenance, which calls for almost daily inspection and continuous repairs, has enabled these highways to stand up under a much heavier traffic than 90 per cent of American roads receive.

The plans of the government will involve a total of several thousand miles of additional new construction, destined to make London the center of the most adequately roaded section of the world.

The United States, just embarking with governmental assistance upon the construction of an interstate, nationwide, primary highway system, will consider the conclusions which an infinitely greater experience has forced upon British highway authorities. While few of our roads, like those in the vicinity of London, need a right of way 120 feet in width at the present time, that traffic requirements will ultimately demand such a width seems almost certain.

Canada Will Spend Big Sum in Building Roads

A million dollars is being spent in road building in British Columbia this year. Most of the work will be done between now and early autumn. The army of laborers now engaged will be shifted to farms during the heavy harvest season.

British Columbia's program is being duplicated by the three prairie provinces. Modern highways are piercing new agricultural sections as rapidly as these districts are settled by incoming farmers. Under the comprehensive program all the branch highways are linked with main roads, thus making western Canada's highways virtually a unit.

"Behind the entire plan," said a good-roads official, "is the establishment of main arteries of travel with a network of connecting roads. These roads will join all the cities and towns and will connect with highways that link up the different provinces."

"Western Canada is one of the richest agricultural districts and its output is rapidly increasing. Farmers are evolving into business men. They are doing much of their marketing with motor trucks. Many motor truck lines are already established for rapid movement of crops to railroad terminals. Good roads are to a large extent eliminating distance. Western Canada realizes that they are indispensable to the development of a country, agriculturally and industrially, and so the ambitious program is being put forward with all speed consistent with good judgment."

"Canada's roads problem was largely solved when the Canadian government appropriated $20,000,000 to be used in construction of main highways and market roads."

Establish Highways on Narrow Rights-of-Way

Too many states are establishing their main highways on narrow rights-of-way and proceeding to install permanent improvements which are bound to increase the value of the adjacent property. When the states come to widen their rights-of-way, as will ultimately be necessary, a tremendous expense will be involved which could be eliminated entirely should the original right-of-way established be made wide enough to accommodate any necessary future increase in pavement width. Such far-sighted provision for the future works no hardship on adjacent farmers as they can be allowed to cultivate the land which for a time will not be required. No expensive improvements, however, would be undertaken on the width set aside for the ultimate road.

Electric Washing

Tests by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, show that the house laundry involves a larger expenditure of human energy than any household work.

But this clothes washing, which for centuries has been the bane of the housewife's life, is simplified and made easy by the electric washing machine. It washes the clothes perfectly, wrings them dry and eliminates all exhausting human labor.

The new electric washing machines are marvels of efficiency. At an expense of a few cents a week for current, they will handle the heaviest wash with ease. Women who see them are delighted with the results and wonder how they ever got along in the old way.

You can get a standard guaranteed electric washing machine from your electrical contractor or from the lighting company.

K. H. S. DEFEATS GREENKILL PARK

The Kingston High School baseball club travelled to Greenkill Park on Monday afternoon, where they met and defeated the team representing that place in a one-sided game. The locals were in good form and never once was the victory in danger. The boys from the Park displayed some good ball, but they had practiced all the previous afternoon, and the result was their throwing was poor, and Kingston rolled up a score of stolen bases. Falk was the home team's heaviest hitter, making two singles and a double, the latter scoring their lone run. Katz showed some good work in the box, but he too was wild, giving 12 bases on balls. Nearly all of the local men had their wallows at the pill. Corregan getting the most number in his two singles. "Whitey" Schmidt redeemed himself for his errors of last Saturday by knocking a home run to left center, scoring with himself. McLane, who was on base. Corregan, in addition to being the star hitter, displayed some fine work in the box, allowing but two walks, striking out twelve, and permitting but five hits. Despite the one-sided score, it was a good game, a display of some real baseball on both sides.

The Kingston men feel very happy over the game, not alone because they won, but for the greater reason that their hosts proved to be royal entertainers and the best of sports. They came after the team in their car and brought them directly to the field. After the game they invited them in for a swim in their lake. Supper was served them at the hotel, after which the Kingston players were given the freedom of the candy case. They were brought home again by their hosts.

Maine Coast.
Sparkling blue water, Christmas-tree shores, great gray boulders, leaping white surf. Island after island. Jutting rocks, crowned with little white lighthouses; green, sunny glades with summer homes amid sheltering pines; long, low rounded hills and cattle against the sky line. Thriving towns, sleepy villages, picturesque landing places. In summer happy pleasure seekers strolling on shore, speeding in motor boats, flitting by in sail boats. In winter, glitter of ice and snow, weather-beaten, softly-tinted fishing smacks; shrewd, wrinkled, weather-seasoned fishermen. Sunnier and winter, green of spruce and pine, tang of crisp balsam air.—Christian Science Monitor.

Menu for Gourmets.
A banquet in Siam is no light matter, as Mr. Hermann Norden, the author of "From Golden Gate to Golden Sun," found out. While in Bangkok he was present at one in which the menu was as follows: Chicken kidneys, mushrooms, shrimp, cheese, shark's ears, soup, fish, onions, macaroni, Chinese bird's-nest soup, duck, barley soup, a sweet fruit soup, made of the milk of a coconut. It was served in the order given, and no wonder that "the dinner committee had sat up until all hours combining this menu for gourmets."

Meteors and Steel.
A study of the great collection of meteorites in a European museum has led to the interesting conclusion that meteoritic iron, as it falls from the sky, and the various steels produced in our modern steel works are the results of essentially similar chemical and physical causes. One of the most striking characteristics noted in meteoritic iron is the presence of a considerable quantity of nickel.

ELTING SEALS SHIP'S LIQUOR

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 12.—The United States public health service today appeared to be in control of the liquor situation in New York Harbor. Philip Hitting, collector of the port said:

"Our laws will be enforced and only such stores as the public health service authorizes will be free from seizure."

The collector said his inspectors had sealed all liquor stocks aboard vessels in the harbor and that ships which sailed after June 10, would be allowed no liquor, even under seal, unless it was a medical stock.

Reports that vessels now in the harbor which sailed from their home ports prior to June 10 are still allowed wine rations for the crews were denied by Prohibition Director Canfield.

"Only medicinal liquor is permissible," he said.

GOOD WAY TO UPSET PRICES

Exposures of How Edison-Ford Money Plan Would Fail to Aid Farmer.

The way the Edison-Ford "commodity" scheme, aimed to stabilize commodity values, would have exactly opposite effect, is discussed in the article, which is the second in a series prepared by the American Bankers Association, reviewing the exposure of the weaknesses of the plan presented by William T. Foster, Director of the Pollack Foundation for Economic Research.

According to the Edison-Ford plan, the Government would warehouse commodities, against which loans would be made to the producer without interest up to half the value of the products for the twenty-five years. This plan would be cancelled as the commodities were withdrawn and the producer would receive "value certificates" which he could use for bank loans. On these points Mr. Foster says:

Upsetting Price Equilibrium
Steady price levels depend mainly on the balance between the volume of money offered for goods and the volume of goods offered for money. The Edison plan is designed to upset the balance. A farmer deposits two thousand bushels of wheat in the Government warehouse. The Government delivers one hundred dollars in new money to the farmer. When the farmer sells the wheat, he repays the loan and the Government destroys the money. Thus the volume of money is increased when goods are stored; and the volume of money is decreased when these goods are marketed. In other words, each transaction by placing in circulation goods for money to match the goods, creates a demand for the supply of goods is withdrawn; the supply of goods is created as dollar bills are withdrawn.

Would it enable the farmer to borrow more money on his products? No, he can now borrow? When Mr. Foster contends that farmers would obtain larger loans on their crops than they can now obtain from banks, he is confronted by this dilemma: Either the banks are now refusing to make sound loans, or, under the Edison plan, the Government would make unsound loans.

"Neither Mr. Edison nor Mr. Ford can consistently contend that banks now refuse to make sound loans, for that is the way banks make most of their profits, and Mr. Edison and Mr. Ford have no doubt that banks are conducted for profit. It follows that the plan would yield larger loans to farmers only if the Government met the risks of unsound banking. In that case all that insolvent borrowers gained would be paid by the rest of the population, which, to say the least, is not a fair deal.

Cutting Down Farm Credit
"Apparently, however, the Government is not expected to run many risks, for the farmer is allowed to borrow an amount no greater than one-half the average value of his product for the previous twenty-five years. But prices have risen so high since 1896 that the farmer could borrow on most products much less than half the present value of the products. It would be much less, therefore, than the farmer could borrow directly from the banks on graded products; on products not graded no Government loans would be made, for there would be no way of determining the twenty-five-year price average.

"However, the farmer, having obtained the stipulated Government loan on his goods, could then offer his equity certificate to a bank for an additional loan. But the equity certificate is virtually a second mortgage, and no bank would prefer a second mortgage to a first mortgage.
"Suppose the Old National Bank was willing to lend a farmer eight hundred dollars on one thousand bushels of wheat. Suppose, however, the farmer deposited the wheat in a Federal warehouse and obtained five hundred dollars from the Government. Certainly the bank would not lend the farmer three hundred dollars on the equity certificate. The protection of the bank would be greater if the farmer relied on the bank for the entire loan; for in that case the bank could realize on its security without being obliged to pay five hundred dollars to get the wheat out of Government storage. The farmer can now borrow more money from a bank on standardized farm products than under the Edison plan."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

I have not succeeded. No man ever succeeds. There always a larger goal ahead." wrote one of America's industrial leaders when asked to be the secret of his success.

When a man is in the position of being thorough-satisfied with his condition in life the chances are that he will make no further progress.

One of the economic evils in England today is the so-called dole system through which the unemployed are given certain support by the government. While governmental aid is, of course, to be recommended in times of extreme emergency, the dole as a whole is creating a demoralizing effect on the people. Thousands are perfectly satisfied with their condition of public dependency. With their ambition for personal progress has been killed. They would rather live their meager way at public expense than create better conditions for themselves through your present condition in life. Seek always the pathway of progress. Strive continually to make more of yourself than is now the case.

After several months spent abroad, the writer, who has just returned to the United States, has been most forcibly impressed with the fact that this general spirit of restless ambition constitutes one of our greatest sources of national strength. In America, broadly speaking, every boy and girl, every man and woman, every village and city, are striving continually toward better conditions. Progress is visible everywhere.

In striking contrast to this universal progressiveness, one notes in the older countries across the sea a greater disposition to let well enough alone, to follow only the lines of tradition, to be satisfied with the methods of past generations.

Let us remember always that success is really discontent expressed in terms of worthy accomplishment.

Warfare of Land and Sea

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The Gulf of California, one of the great gulfs of the world, is next-door to the United States, yet little known. A recent resolution of the Arizona House of Representatives seeking to have the United States acquire a strip of territory between Arizona and the Gulf, whatever its fate, at least centers attention on the potential importance of this great body of water.

If the Gulf of California were stretched out inland over our country from New York harbor, it would swallow up a stretch of country from 30 to 150 miles wide back as far as Detroit and its busy factories. It was shown on the early maps of North America as the Sea of Cortez, since this bold corsair explored it first. Its depth varies from 600 to 6,000 feet, its coast line on both sides is irregular, and in it are many islands, Angel de la Guarda and Tiburón being the largest. The latter island points its rocky crest 7,000 feet above the level of the sea, and is inhabited by a fierce and warlike tribe of Indians, the Seris, who, it is claimed, have cannibalistic instincts.

It can be easily understood that it is solely because of the outlet that there has been a move toward acquiring the strip of northern Mexico south of Arizona, for it is one of the most desolate regions of North America. The map shows that while the southern boundary of the state extends due west for a space from the southwestern corner of New Mexico, it then strikes northwestward at a very slight angle. The resolution sought an arrangement with Mexico by which this bend in the southern boundary of the state would be eliminated so that the line would continue as it started, in a due east and west direction. The triangular area that would be added to the state would be about 240 miles long by about 60 miles wide at the point of greatest breadth.

Arizona Would Be Coast State.

The important consideration is that this long narrow triangle is all that separates Arizona from the sea. Add it to Arizona, and overnight the state would desert the 27 inland commonwealths and join the 21 that border on salt water. With its hundreds of thousands of tons of minerals to ship, the state is now bottled up by a narrow region undeveloped and little likely to be developed by its present owner. It is felt that even the desolate, practically trailless desert, and the lack of natural harbors on the Gulf would not deter Yankee enterprise and Yankee engineering ability from laying down a rail of steel and constructing quays or piers at which ocean steamers would soon be loading, furnishing the cheap transportation that bulky products demand.

The areas of most states are well known, even the parts sparsely populated. It is hard for dwellers in many other portions of the United States to realize, therefore, that not only is this triangle of Mexico a terra incognita, but that the portion of Arizona which adjoins it is almost equally so. Most of the region south of the Southern Pacific railroad may be thought of as a desert on which small broken rocky ranges of mountains have been superimposed. In the valleys between the craggy mountains are numerous patches of fertile soil, but little rain falls and there are practically no running streams—only dry stream-beds which now and then carry water for a few hours until it is lost in the sand, and a very few water holes.

Both north and south of the border, this region is given over almost wholly to a handful of Papago Indians with communistic customs who range as freely as did their remote ancestors, needing to give, in their desolate homeland, little or no thought to border lines or to the governmental machinery of states and nations. The region—both American and Mexican—is known roughly as "Papagueria," and is seldom traversed by white men.

Through the international boundary extends, the ultimate in arbitrary lines. Serving neither to the right nor to the left it extends, a straight, geometrical line, running up sheer cliffs and over craggy peaks, hurdling great valleys and tiny arroyos, crossing deserts, lava flows, and sand dunes, until it strikes the Colorado river some 600 miles below Yuma. And it is imaginary as well as arbitrary. Little monuments from three to five miles apart mark its progress, but these are often obscured; and the Indians and the occasional white or Mexican travelers, may, and do cross and recross it frequently without knowing its location, and with no guards or officials to question them.

Not a Pleasant Region.

The Mexican triangle of Papagueria which it is proposed to add to Arizona, is even a more inhospitable country than the border region. In addition to the features of the latter, it embraces a district 30 by 40 miles covered by extinct volcanic craters and an ancient lava flow, and hundreds of square miles of great towering sand dunes that create a landscape like that of parts of the Sahara. On the highest lava peaks of Pinalcote, say the old Papago legends, their "Elder Brother" landed from his cusk after the deluge and after floating around the world four times. While his solitude for animals was not so extensive as that of the Hebrew Noah, he at least managed to save a coyote and a beetle. The Papagos formerly were "sand people" living in the sand dune region near the lava fields, with headquarters at the few small water holes. This region is now practically deserted, the Papagos living by dry-farming and stock-raising farther east and north.

On the southern edge of the Bay of St. George is the Salina de St. George, a salt deposit, usually measuring about 325 feet in diameter, but sometimes entirely covered by the sea, which is a favorite with the Papagos. When they need salt, the customary method is to ride to the foothills of Chujubahi, perform a certain ceremonial rite peculiar to the gathering of salt, and then walk the 50 miles to the Salina in about a day and a half. There is no water to be had between the two places. The Pinalcote Salt deposit, about fifty miles farther north on the Gulf shore, however, has always furnished the major portion of the salt supply of the Papago Indians. The amount of this heavy commodity that the Indians can carry is astounding. Not only are Papago families in Arizona supplied from this distant source, but in the past the entire salt supply of sizable American towns has been purchased from the Indians.

The proposed boundary line would strike the Gulf of California just north of the Bay of St. George, which has been considered by Mexico as a possible port site. There is no general knowledge of good natural harbors along the portion of the gulf to the north, but probably there would be little difficulty in constructing harbor facilities either along Bahía Adair, which would mark the southern boundary of the addition, or northward toward the head of the gulf. The larger sand dunes are 20 miles from the shore near the gulf head and an equal distance from the Colorado river. The most feasible railroad route probably would be from the neighborhood of Yuma, extending roughly parallel to the river.

Paradise for Fishermen.

The placing of a portion of the Gulf of California under the jurisdiction of the United States would open up another fishermen's paradise. Even now a few super-adventurous Americans venture to this unknown region on hunting and fishing trips, but in an alien land where only the law of the frontier prevails, it is a somewhat risky procedure. There is a multitudinous variety of fish in the gulf's waters—a sufficient supply to justify the erection of huge canneries. Today they are serving as food for innumerable pelicans and other fish-eating birds. The natives and Mexicans of the region are without skill and the facilities for catching them. They usually "still-fish" at great depths for the jewfish and tortuava and kill their catches by pounding them on the head when they get them to the surface.

At present Guaymas, about half way down the gulf, is the farthest north port of any consequence. Under the strong, centralized, though somewhat despotic regime of Diaz, Guaymas was a bustling port of consequence; but the products of the hinterland fell off under revolution and insecurity, and for years the bay has been silted up. But it still hints of the possibilities in Lower California across the gulf. Now and then a schooner from that mysterious shore will put into Guaymas and yield up its cargo of dates in rawhide-covered boxes, sewed up in the form and size of flour barrels, as the friars taught the Lower Californians to do two centuries ago.

Electroscope as Detector.

Electric Eel Dangerous.

The electric eel is a great eel of South American swamps. It attains a length of six to seven feet, and can discharge at will electricity sufficient to kill a bullock, let alone a man.

A Motion Picture That Will Startle the World! Maurice Tourneur's production of "THE CHRISTIAN," by Sir Hall Caine

The most dramatic love story ever told in pictures. Unquestionably the biggest sensation of the year!

Miss Helena Drachman

Miss Helena Drachman, 21, of Youngstown, Ohio, was found murdered under a railroad culvert near that city. She had been stabbed five times and her head tightly encased in a linen duster which had been tied about her neck. Miss Drachman had been missing for a week from the Young Women's Christian Association Home, where she lived. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the murder, and arrests have been made. An anonymous letter received by the police led to the discovery of the body.

ALL STARS LOST AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Saturday in Fast Game 8 to 6—Phelan's Homer and Remarkable Catch Responsible for Win—Play at Philmont Next Sunday.

The Kingston All Stars dropped a hard game to the Hudson River State Hospital Saturday at Poughkeepsie by an 8 to 6 score. Loose playing in the early innings was largely responsible for the locals' defeat. It was their second defeat in the four games played this season.

The hospital team was composed of players of the Schatz and Bridge City Red Sox and had a very strong combination. To big Ed Phelan is given the credit for Poughkeepsie's victory. With two on in the fourth he clouted a homer and in the eighth he made a wonderful catch of Van Bramer's hit, which would have been a homer with two aboard.

For the All Star team Diddik and Nichols were the star hitters, making four and three hits respectively. Spates, a spitballer from the Bronx, was on the mound for the local team. The local team outthit Poughkeepsie, 12 to 10.

Next Sunday the All Stars journey to Philmont. The Kingston players will stick to the road all season. Stoudt, the underhand hurler for the All Stars, will be out of the game, owing to an injured knee.

JOHN M. MAYER.

A few days ago Rube Forsythe made the remark that he didn't understand why he couldn't hit, as last season he led the Astors in batting. The Rube came back on Saturday and managed to get three hits out of four times at bat and as a result he is now leading the Colonials with an average of .368. It is a remarkable thing for a pitcher to have an average as high as this. Bobby Coyle, the clouting first baseman, comes next with an average of .351. Then along comes another ex-Astor and takes third place in the standing, namely, Swat Russell, who at the present time is clouting the ball at a .345 rate. Deegan, Ross and Dahm are also hitting at a .300 clip. McCue's average is gradually coming up and he is now hitting .286. Bill Schwab's average began to come up but Saturday and Sunday it took a decided slump downwards and as a result his average is .266. In the two games that Strenk played with the local team when Russell was out of the game he made an average of .300.

Following is the record of the team up to and including Sunday, June 10.

KELLY ALL STARS
